DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

3. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

4. Claims 55-57 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Takase et al. (EPA 0,417,305 A1).

Takase et al. disclose an apparatus for performing assays substantially as claimed. The apparatus comprises an axially rotatable substrate 101 having a plurality of radially-arrayed reaction sites 102, 104 means for rotating and controlling the rotation of substrate 101, a fluid dispenser 7 or nozzle 9 for conveying fluid to reaction sites (column 13, lines 53-57), a readout device 11 for reading reactions at reaction sites/marks, means 19 for identifying the reactions sites (figures 1, 2, and 9-11).

Takase et al. disclose the claimed invention except for a fluid dispenser which is adapted to convey an amount less than 0.5 microliters to the reaction sites and the presence of 20,000 reaction sites. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention was made to provide a fluid dispenser to convey an amount less than 0.5 microliters to the reactions sites, thereby reducing the amount of sample necessary for analysis and further provide a high number of reaction sites to increase the throughput and number of testing which may be conducted simultaneously thereby making the process more efficient. Further, since it has been held that where the general conditions of a claim are disclosed in the prior art, discovering the optimum or workable ranges involves only routine skill in the art.

Allowable Subject Matter

5. Claims 1-54 are allowed.

Conclusion

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Webb; Peter G.; Clarke; Mark S. F. et al.; Clark; David D. et al.; Velghe; Franck et al.; Bogen; Steven A. et al.; Ishihara; Naruhito et al.; Andersson; Lars;
